Summary/Description

Based on the high performing the Olympia 76, TC Yachts invited yacht design master, Peter Lowe to further expand the design. They combined the hull of the Olympia 76 with a new deck shape and layout to create the Aquabay 70. The interior is minimalist and modern throughout, yet open and inviting.

The Aquabay 70 Flybridge model is a dynamic yacht cruiser offering US buyers robust Australian design coupled with rugged SCRIMP hull and deck construction. The result is a powerhouse performance yacht that has all the comforts one would expect in the pedigree while avoiding the cookie-cutter feel of production yachts. It feels solid and lasting because it is built with quality materials and engineering.

This Peter Lowe Design by Michele Briand- an Australian designer known for producing stylish and capable yachts for their clients. The resulting design and Express and Flybridge models clearly bring their designs to life.

Originally designed for the Australian market, the Aquabay 70 Express and 70 Flybridge models combine the graceful lines and construction that translates to comfortable ride at speed, great maneuverability, and an interior layout that can be adjusted to suit owner's cabin requirements. More notably - the use of optional pod drive systems for propulsion allow the interior design to increase cabin spaces for those owners that wish to add the optional Volvo IPS System. It is now available to US buyers. The Aquabay 70 gives owners a great yacht built with lasting craftsmanship. Each is produced specifically for their owners. Construction is generally around 12 months. Give us a call to make plans for next year's cruising adventures in a brand new Aquabay 70 built for you and your family.
