The PowerBoat Guide had this to say:

The Formula 400 Super Sport is an American-built entry into the high-performance luxury sportboat market dominated in recent years by a handful of pricey European imports. Long and narrow, the 400 is built on Formula's "Fas3Tech" hull bottom—a double-stepped deep-V affair designed to reduce the water's grip on the hull. The result, according to company engineers, is a faster and more stable boat that runs at near-optimal running angles without the need to constantly trim the drives. Beautifully styled, the Super Sport is a superb day boat with plenty of cockpit space and a wide-open interior. With the owner's stateroom aft, a rich Ultraleather wraparound lounge forward and four overhead translucent hatches dominate the salon. On deck, the doublewide helm seat folds away for standup driving, and a walk-through windshield opens to a wide stretch of nonskid leading to the bow. Notable features include a recessed anchor storage compartment, a hinged storage locker at the transom, and good engine access.
