The PowerBoat Guide had this to say:

The Formula 37 PC is a top-shelf family express whose aggressive good looks (note the reverse radar arch) and sumptuous interior are designed to appeal to upmarket cruisers willing to pay a little extra for the built-in quality of a Formula product. She's built on a beamy deep-V hull with prop pockets and a relatively modest 18 degrees of deadrise at the transom. The mid-cabin floor-plan of the 37 PC is unusually wide open and spacious thanks to the absence of any interior cabin bulkheads. Headroom is excellent, the decor is quite elegant, and the furnishings and appliances are first rate. Draw curtains rather than doors are used to separate both sleeping areas, however—a privacy issue for some. The cockpit, with its U-shaped lounge (which converts into a big sun pad), wet bar and triple-wide helm seat, can accommodate 10 passengers. Note that the entire transom and rear seat unit can be raised for excellent (and innovative) engine access. Additional features include a walk-through windshield, a huge transom locker, and foredeck sun pad.
